5. Outline of the Graduate School of Science and Engineering

(1) Organization

The Graduate School of Science and Engineering at Ehime University has been designed as indicated in the chart below. The Graduate School Course consists of a Pre-doctoral Course (equivalent to Master Degree) and Doctoral Course.

(2) Outline of the Special Graduate Course on Disaster Mitigation Study for Asian Students and the affiliated faculties

The 21st century has been named the Century of Natural Disasters. Among all disaster-hit nations in the world, the Asian nations probably suffer the most leaving a large number of people as victims every year. To mitigate natural disasters or to minimize disaster damage/loss, it is all essentially important to understand disaster occurrence mechanism and work out various mitigation measures. Towards this effort, the Special Course for Asian Students on Disaster Mitigation Study at the Graduate School of Science and Engineering, Ehime University has been designed to train Asian students in the field of earthquake hazard and meteorological disasters, their mechanisms of occurrence, damage mitigation, hazard prevention, disaster management, disaster informatics, and other related topics.

The following are the affiliated faculties and their disciplines:

Mitsu Okamura	Professor, Geo-Hazard Engineering
Shinya Kobayashi	Professor, Distributed Processing System
Ryo Moriwaki	Professor, Water environment
Hideaki Yasuhara	Professor, Rock Engineering
Hirofumi Hinata	Professor, Coastal Engineering
Netra Prakash Bhandary	Professor, Geo-disaster Engineering
Keiyu Kawaai	Associate Professor, Concrete Engineering
